AN APPEAL FOR THE "SHELTERING ARM."

A home for women wishing to reform. A house was rented and fitted up by a lady in this city to "lift up the fallen." A conviction of duty gave the first impetus to the work, and the example and words of the Master himself gave us courage to go forward.

The motive was the salvation of precious, immortal souls, and dear friends, not until we can estimate the value of an immortal soul, can we say that we are spending too much time, love, and money in this work.

There were no visible means of support when these poor fallen women came to us with pleadings "for God's sake to save them." Our petition was, "Lord what wouldst Thou have us do?"

The work has now been carried on for more than three months; there have been six or eight inmates in the home; one was married, two have gone back. The expenses (including cost of furniture) have been considerably over two hundred dollars, which, with the exception of one dollar from a clergyman, has been advanced by one lady.

This lady can not bear the burden longer. What shall be done? Must we close the doors for want of means, and send these immortal souls back to their old haunts of vice and degradation?

This subject should claim the attention of our honorable and worthy Mayor, the ministers of the Gospel, and all benevolent and philanthropic men.

We leave it with you. Upon whose skirts will their blood be found?
Mrs. WM. Aiken, President.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The August number is even more than usually interesting; it is filled with highly entertaining and instructive matter, and many of the articles are replete with valuable information—as, for instance, "Sights in Southern China," by T. W. Knox; "The Lakes of Italy," by Lady Blanche Murray; "The Arms of the Medici," by F. H. Norton; and "The Metamorphoses of the Sphinx," which are admirably and profusely illustrated. "The Summer Amusements of the American People," "The Race for the Blue Ribbons of the Derby," and "Etna and its Eruptions," will well repay the reader. The department of fiction is peculiarly rich this month. A new serial by the author of "Dora Thorne," entitled "A Golden Dawn," promises to be a story of deep and stirring interest. There are several short stories by M. T. Caldwell, Annie Thomas, Eleanor Kirk, and other popular writers; poems of genuine merit, sketches, etc., etc., and a carefully selected miscellany, including History, Science, Travel, Wit, and many other subjects. The illustrations number quite one hundred, and there is a very beautiful chromo-frontispiece "On the Pier at Trouville." Single copies are only 25 cents, and the annual subscription, $3, postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 55, 56 and 57 Park Place, New York.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT COAL CREEK.

Death of a Convict from the Foul Gas in the Mines.

Throws a Distance of Forty Feet and Killed Instantly.

A fatal accident occurred to one of the convicts at work in the Knoxville Iron Company's coal mine, at Coal Creek, yesterday morning. The squad of convicts were started bright and early into the mine to work as usual, with their cap lamps. In coming out of the mine Saturday night, the man whose duty it was, had neglected to close up the entrance; hence, it had become filled with foul gas. A colored convict named Adolphus Johnson, from Memphis, went in the lead, but had not gone far till his lamp ignited the gas. This caused it to rush first towards the back of the mine, and then recoil, and it came with terrific force against Johnson, hurling him a distance of about forty feet, and causing instant death. Another convict, a white man, who was following close after the unfortunate man, was injured slightly, though nothing very serious. The others of the squad were out of reach.

This is the first accident of the kind, or any other, that has happened at the mines since they have been under the efficient management of Captain Clumbly, Superintendent of the convict force. It is much regretted, and will be carefully guarded against in the future. It would not have happened had the gateway to the mine been closed Saturday night, and the cause of the neglect was that the man whose duty it was, was a new hand, and not fully up in his duties.

HAIR

RENEWER

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effective or desirable. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."
